Overview

The Great Aurora Hunt is a small■group Northern Lights expedition in Swedish Lapland designed for travellers who want to experience and photograph the aurora beneath dark Arctic skies. Taking place during the New Moon period in March, the expedition explores the winter landscapes around Luleå where favourable viewing conditions and minimal light pollution provide excellent opportunities for observing the Northern Lights. Led by professional astrophotographer and veteran aurora chaser Andy Keen, guests search for the aurora while exploring quiet Arctic landscapes far from city lights.

Your Expedition Leader

Andy Keen is a professional astrophotographer and veteran aurora chaser with more than 16 years of experience beneath Arctic skies and over 10,000 hours spent observing the Northern Lights. His work has appeared in The Guardian, Sky & Telescope, Wanderlust and other international publications, and he has helped thousands of guests witness and photograph the aurora since 2008.
